

Allies In Big Assault

One of Heaviest
Ground Attacks
In Year Grabs
Parts of 2 Hills

SEOUL (AP) — Allied infantrymen lashed out today with their heaviest ground attack in nearly a year and grabbed portions of two Chinese-held hills on the Central Korean Front.

The attacking troops, backed by heavy tank and artillery fire, knocked the Reds off two knobs of Triangle Hill, north of Kumsong. Two miles to the east they swept over a portion of "Sniper Ridge." Both hills are about 1,500 feet high.

The initial charge carried the attack force to the crest of Triangle, but the Chinese regrouped and regained the crest.

Move For New Thrust
After trying to scramble back up the sharp shale-covered slope, the U. N. soldiers abandoned their frontal attack. They began working their way across the nearby hill saddle for a thrust from the east.

A frontline officer said the Triangle is "a very difficult hill to climb, let alone assault."

An estimated Chinese battalion held the crest of Triangle and rolled hand grenades and rocks down the slope. Front reports said Red resistance on Sniper Ridge was considerably lighter.

The twin peaks anchor the eastern base of the old Communist Iron Triangle, supply and troop massing area. A U. S. Eighth Army officer described them as "very strong outpost positions outside the normal Chinese main line of resistance." He emphasized they were not part of the main Chinese line.

ROKs Keep Pushing Ahead
About 17 miles to the west, South Korean soldiers pushed ahead doggedly in an attack to drive Chinese Communists from their last foothold on White Horse Mountain. The Reds held desperately onto two low knobs on the northwest ridge.

The fighting on White Horse has raged for eight days and has cost the Chinese an estimated 10,000 casualties.

Allied warplanes with wing racks full of bombs and rockets rained over the battlefield and pounded the Chinese.

Front-line reports said fierce bayonet fighting broke out on both White Horse and Triangle.

The attack on Triangle, north of Kumsong, began when raiding parties crept out ahead in the cold predawn mist. They wiped out several Chinese positions.

Then the main force stormed forward.

Pushed From Hill Crest
The first assault carried right to the crest of the hill. But the Reds quickly recovered and pushed bayonet fight over the crest.

Chinese reinforcements began to move up from "Papa-San" Mountain, about 500 yards north of Triangle. Allied artillery observed big guns opened up. The Reds were blanketed by air-bursting shells.

The Allied troops fought their way toward the crest a second time. Soft sand and shale slopes little protection from the dug-in Reds on top.

"The assault troops have been under terrific mortar fire from the time they jumped off," a frontline officer reported. "The battle is a big tough fight and very bloody. It hasn't slackened off a bit."

Community Chest Drive Begins To Raise Funds for 8 Agencies

Hundreds of Pettis Countians are to be aided by the Community Chest fund of 1952 — collections for which are starting with the goal of having every person give something toward the maintenance of the agencies which share in the contributions.

Elsewhere in today's Democrat will be found the first of a series of articles telling of the individuals who share in the chest. This first article deals with the Boy Scouts. Names of hundreds of local boys in the program are included.

Later stories will list the names of the hundreds of Girl Scouts who participate and youths from the county who have received care and treatment from the Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City.

Then, too, there will be stories on the Minola and Melita Day Nurseries and the two Teen Towns as well as the Salvation Army.

All of the agencies except Mercy Hospital are local organizations, maintained for local people. The youth programs get almost their sole support from the Community Chest.

Ike Celebrates
62nd Birthday
In Tex. Today

Calls In South
For Rebellion
Against Demos

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower celebrated his sixty-second birthday in his native Texas today by calling for the Southland to rise up in political rebellion against the Democratic party.

A mid-morning crowd estimated by police at more than 15,000 gave the GOP presidential nominee a warm welcome to Houston, the first stop on his push into Texas.

State Atty. Gen. Price Daniel—Democratic senatorial nominee—introduced Eisenhower and declared: "Because of you Texas can no longer be taken for granted by any political party."

Daniel said he spoke as a Texas Democrat who was going to vote for the general as president—and that the Texas Democratic party was "fed up with Trumanism."

"This year," he said, "I predict Texas is going to do something about it." And the crowd cheered.

Eisenhower responded by ripping into the Truman administration with such harsh words as "weak-kneed and soft-headed," "power mongers," "reckless drivers," and "discredited."

Chief Police Inspector W. P. Haley estimated 6,500 persons in the crowd that gathered in the square outside the Civic Auditorium. But others sized up the crowd as being considerably smaller.

Eisenhower said experienced politicians had told him not to campaign in the South because "the administration has those states in the bag." A swelling yell of "No, no," went up from the crowd.

They laughed and cheered when he called the administration "weak-kneed and soft-headed."

"A number of businessmen had declared 'Eisenhower hour' so that they could attend the speech. The city hall, opposite the rotunda, was packed with spectators standing on the parapets of each of the three tiers. Others watched from windows.

The city started celebrating early.

Eisenhower's campaign train rolled to a stop shortly after 10 a. m., and some crowd already were waiting. A high-stepping brass band, serenaded the general and his party. The birthday celebration, with a gaily decorated cake big enough for a regiment of hungry Marines, was held beside the rear platform of the car.

Sedalia Homes To Be Visited In Chest Drive

Goal Is To Have
Every Housewife's
Name As A Donor

The women's division of the Pettis County Community Chest is organizing and preparing to start its drive with the slogan "Some Contribution from Every Housewife."

Feeling that every housewife in Sedalia wants to and should contribute to the Sedalia Community Chest, the women's division has mapped out the city so that every home should be contacted within the next few days. This work is being directed by Mrs. Carl Siegel, chairman, and Mrs. Cline Cain, co-chairman.

"We want every housewife to have her name on the list of donors, even though her husband has contributed elsewhere," Mrs. Siegel said.

At an organization meeting, Monday afternoon, the material for the Community Chest Drive was distributed to the following: 16 Captains, Mrs. Worth Wilson, Mrs. E. G. Kehde, Jr., Mrs. Nathan Jones, Mrs. Maurice Griffin, Mrs. George Gamber, Mrs. J. Pierre Lamy, Mrs. A. A. Studebaker, Mrs. Lawrence Twenter, Mrs. John Kenney, Mrs. Robert L. Logan, Mrs. A. L. Hawkins, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. C. W. Dunlap, Mrs. J. Gregory and Mrs. Lloyd Parker.

"The women's division is striving for 100-percent coverage of Sedalia," Mrs. Siegel said, "and remember that your contributions not only help support a worthy cause, but provides for a more healthy progressive city."

Charge Mother Drowned Baby Boy In Bathtub

ATLANTA (AP)—A 31-year-old Atlanta divorcee, police said, drowned her baby boy in a bathtub to increase her chances of winning the affections of a "new heart interest."

Detectives H. F. Brown and W. E. Petty today said Mrs. Emylee Bruce arrested a week ago after her 22-month-old son Tommy was found floating in a bathtub, told officers:

"I knew that no man wanted another man's children. He'd rather have his own."

The officers told this story: Mrs. Bruce, former federal government secretary, became infatuated with an attorney who defended her second husband last August on car theft charges.

She admitted in a statement that she choked the boy, put him in a bathtub and then sat on him.

"He spilled finger paint and remover on furniture. x x x He cried and whined x x x he got on my nerves," she said.

Mrs. Bruce is held on a murder charge.

High Court Ends $500,000 Fight To Fire One Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court has finally ended the government's three-year, $500,000 fight to fire a $4,900 a year printer in the government's favor.

The high court yesterday refused to consider an appeal by Orion T. Campbell, who sought reinstatement in his job at the government printing office. The Justice Department said he was discharged June 3, 1949, for misconduct, including defiance of orders and "false accusations" against his superiors.

Campbell, now a first lieutenant assigned to the 38th reproduction squadron at Gowen Field, Boise, Idaho, said his long court fight was aimed at clarifying the status of war veterans in government jobs.

The deputy public printer estimated the case cost the government half a million dollars, mostly in working time of government employees.

approach each other.

Aircraft industry experts guessed, also, that the plane might carry guided missiles, to be released automatically when the interceptor reached the correct distance from a target.

Although the first airplanes of the Air Force order may be off the assembly line sooner, it was considered unlikely that crews would be trained and that delta interceptors would be operational as a unit for a couple of years yet.

An Air Force spokesman said the F102 would resemble the XF92 in shape, but not necessarily in size.

The XF92 has a 60-degree sweepback to its delta wing, a service ceiling of more than 4,500 feet and a maximum gross takeoff weight of 15,000 pounds.

It is 42 feet five inches long, has a 31-foot, three-inch wing span and is 17 feet, eight inches high.

participating group, gives more to Pettis County each year than it receives, because it gives care to youths without regard for the amount of money sent—and there have been many local youngsters who have found new hope in life as a result of their stays at the great children's institution.

Through the Community Chest the residents of Pettis County have the opportunity to give support to all the agencies at once. If it were not for the chest, each agency would have to have its own campaign and fund drive every year and solicitations would be almost continuous.

The goal for the year is $29,000 and this represents not the sums agencies feel they need, but the amounts the board of directors of the Community Chest believes will be adequate. Each agency submitted its budget and the board shaved these to the minimum.

From whatever money is raised the eight organizations will participate on a proportionate basis. For any one to have its full amount, the entire $29,000 must be raised.

Adlai Asserts
GOP Program
Only Slogans

CASPER, Wyo. (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson declared today that the Republicans "prefer slogans, emotion and confetti" to facing up to their record on the campaign issues of peace and prosperity.

The Democratic presidential nominee, beginning her 6,000-mile flying trip to the West and Texas, voiced a ringing indictment of what he called a long record of "Republican isolationism in foreign affairs and inaction in domestic affairs."

In a speech prepared for a Casper campaign rally, the Illinois governor expressed "sorrow" and "dismay" at the tactics adopted by his Republican opponent, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Asserting that the "Old Guard reactionaries" of the Republican Party had "opposed every measure to build up America's strength and America's alliances against the Communist conspiracy," Stevenson added:

"Moreover—to my sorrow and dismay—they seem to have induced or forced the general to alter his own positive principles and to adopt equivocal and hesitant views that savor more of isolation and retreat than security and confidence."

Firing a broadside at his opponents, the Illinois governor declared:

Canadian Presides Over UN

Will Hold Gavel
For Crucial Debate
Over Korean War
And Colonialism

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The United Nations convened its seventh general assembly today and elected Canada's Lester B. Pearson to preside over critical debates on Korea and colonialism.

The world organization met for the first time in its spanking new building on New York's East River. An atmosphere of diplomatic gloom contrasted sharply with the shining setting.

The new president got 51 votes in the secret balloting and Mrs. V. L. Pandit of India four.

Pearson, foreign secretary of Canada, is former head of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Two years ago he served on a U. N. mediation committee which tried unsuccessfully to end the Korean War.

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei V. Vishinsky sat in front row seats as the retiring assembly president, Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, banged the gavel at 11:20 a. m.

The leaders of the opposing free world and Communist bloc did not greet one another as they entered the 12½ million dollar hall where they will clash during the next few weeks on such subjects as Korea, disarmament, Germany, Austria and independence for colonial countries.

Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri of New York greeting the delegates from the black marble and pale wood rostrum, admitted the "organism of optimism" even perhaps some of the good-will which hailed the U. N. seven years ago was missing today. But, he declared as the representatives of 60 countries in the oval room listened intently, time "has not diminished the hopes which rest with you."

Capacity Crowd On Hand
The hall, whose dominant colors are olive green and pale blue, was jammed to its 2054 capacity. It is the third and last completed building of the 68 million U. N. headquarters.

Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin, who was chairman of the committee in charge of construction of the building group.

"Let us begin all our work in the name of God," Austin urged, "in order to fulfill the work of this capital of peace."

The session began amid reports of a split among the three big western powers over colonial issues.

The American election campaign, although not mentioned in the speeches, was recalled by the absence of the British and French foreign secretaries Anthony Eden and Robert Schuman. Both decided to postpone coming here until after the Nov. 4 election, in order to avoid any appearance of interfering in the campaign.

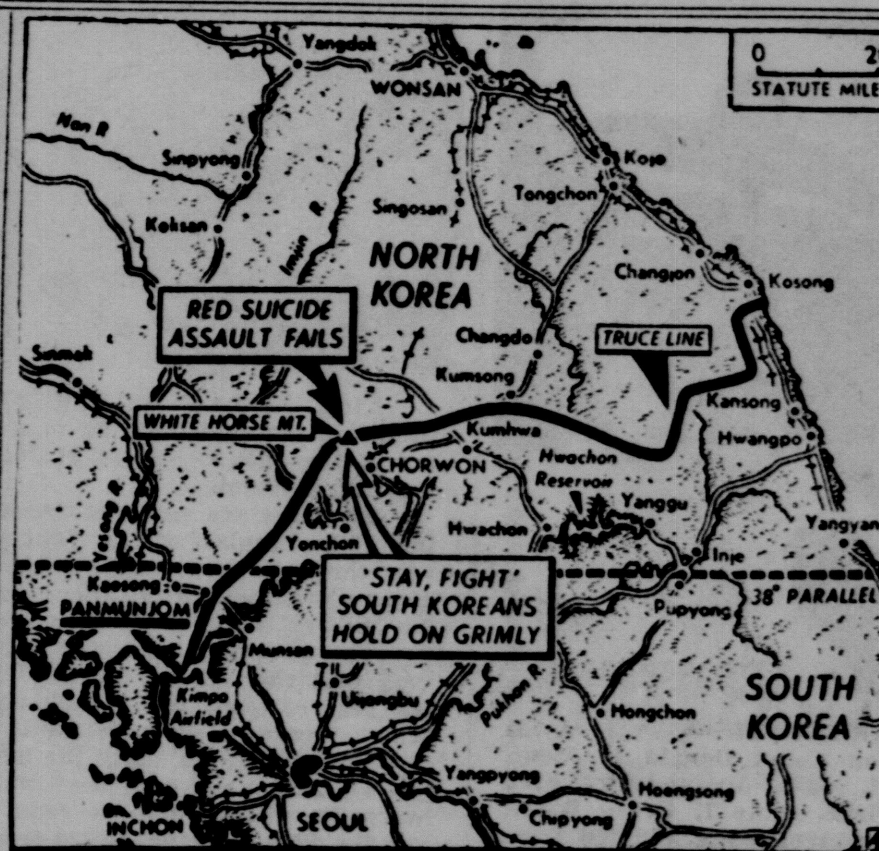

Vishinsky was flanked by the Soviet ambassador to Britain, Andrei Gromyko; his ambassador to the U. S., George Zarubini; and Russia's new chief U. N. delegate, Valerian Zorin. Estimating delegate Jacob A. Malik was serving in the delegation—the strongest and largest the USSR has ever sent to a U. N. meeting.

See Soviet Offensive
The presence of all these Kremlin officers has led to the belief the Soviet union plans a smashing diplomatic offensive.

Acheson had Austin with him as well as Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.) and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mrs. Roosevelt, a delegate to all seven assemblies, was greeted with applause when she arrived.

Both France and Britain oppose putting the Tunisian and Moroccan questions on the agenda. The French also have voiced strong irritation at colonial questions.

In Paris last winter and later in New York last spring, the U. S. refused to back Moroccan and Tunisian demands for a hearing on the ground that direct negotiations still were under way outside the U. N.

Hope to Solve 4 Slayings With Tale of Girl Not Yet 4

CHESTER, Calif. (AP)—"Did you have a nice ride, Sondra Gay?" That is the first of a series of questions authorities hope brutally beaten little Sondra Gay Young will answer—and lead them to a robber who beat her and bludgeoned her father and three children to death near here Friday.

Sheriff's officers said they pinned great hope on the memory of 3½-year-old Sondra Gay, as numerous other leads dissolved under investigation.

Sheriff M. H. Schooler of Plumas County said his investigation had narrowed to "four not suspects," but none were "close to arrest."

Sondra Gay is recovering slowly from skull fractures.

She was found Saturday stuffed in the trunk of the family car along with the bodies of her mother, Mrs. Young, 43, two sisters, Judy, 6, and Jean, 7, and a neighbor boy, Michael Saile, 4.

Officers said the killer or killers apparently waylaid Young as he returned to this small logging town with $7,128 cash from his custom-made Friday trip to a bank at Westwood, 14 miles away, to get funds to cash loggers' checks.

The children were along as a special treat.

"Did you like your popsicle?" is another question Sheriff Schooler has propounded for Sondra Gay's mother, Mrs. Christal Young, to ask as soon as the child can be questioned.

After Young withdrew the cash from a bank he bought the children popsicles and candy. Then they started home.

Another question will be "Did someone hit you?"

If the answer to that is "Yes," the next will be "Do you know who hit you?"

Officers presume the killer or killers knew Young, and hope Sondra Gay recognized and can name him.

Officers stepped off the train and greeted his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf W. Bus, 1612 South Prospect, for the first time in a year. The station clock read 3:40 a. m., but no one cared about the time.

Jimmy, or rather A 2½ Bus, USAF, is home for a 30-day furlough before reporting on Nov. 9 to Osceola Air Force Base, Mich. That won't seem very far away from home to him anymore, though.

His travels all started with his enlistment for four years on Jan. 4, 1951. After basic training, he was trained in supply technique and then was sent overseas last November. He now works in the supply section and as mail clerk for units at air bases in Pyongyang and Chunchon, in the eastern sector of Korea. He stayed there ten months.

Jimmy returned to the States on the USS Gen. Breckenridge with 1,400 other Air Force men and about 400 army, navy and civilian personnel. He docked at San Francisco Sept. 27, telephoning his parents from there. He left the west coast by train on Sept. 30 and arrived in Sedalia on Oct. 3.

A big dinner was the first item on his furlough agenda, Jimmy says, but the rest of the time can take care of itself. He's content to relax and catch up on civilian luxuries. He plans to visit the Missouri Pacific shops, where his father is machinist and where he himself worked as an apprentice before he entered the service.

SAFB Bids Are Opened

Tecon Firm, Dallas,
Apparently Is Low
Bidder on Project
Of Near $6 Millions

Bids on construction of runways, taxiways, aprons, overlays, etc., at the Sedalia Air Force Base, south of Knob Noster, were opened Tuesday at the District Office in Kansas City of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, under the supervision of Col. L. J. Lincoln. The Tecon Corp., Dallas, Tex., is the apparent low bidder for the contract with a bid of $5,947,382.50.

The government estimate for the project was announced at $6,959,370.28.

Ten contracting firms were bidders on the project. There was none from this area bidding on the master contract. However, it was not made known whether the Tecon firm had any subcontract bids of firms in this area.

The contract Tuesday is the second largest to be opened for the SAFB in the past three weeks. Bidding on the Group "A," airman's dormitories and three mess hall-administrations, was held on Sept. 30. Final approval on this letting is expected to be completed late Tuesday, with work to get under way by Oct. 27.

Vast Amount of Work
Tuesday's project calls for 440,000 square yards of airfield pavement; 266,000 square yards of overlay pavement; 1,000,000 square yards of earth excavation; drainage structure and appurtenances.

Estimated figures show there is to be one new runway 10,000 feet long, 200 feet wide with a depth of concrete pavement of feet 16 to 18 inches of rigid construction; taxiways with an approximate 146 square yards of concrete with an 18-inch depth; overlay pavement on present runways, parking aprons calls for pouring of approximately 254,000 square yards of concrete with an approximate depth of 14 inches.

Col. Lincoln announced that before the contract is actually let, it must first be approved by the U. S. Air Force. As soon as their approval has been given, the contractor is notified and work must start within 10 days after his notification. The approval should not take more than a week or ten days, depending on a great deal on how fast the government officials can get to the project.

Has 270 Days for Job
As soon as the work is started the contractor is given 270 calendar days to complete the project, excluding, of course, Sundays and holidays.

U. S. Air Force and U. S. Army Corps of Engineers officers are in conference studying the bid on the Group "A" contract. A decision is expected to be reached soon as to which of the two low contracts will be approved. One bid was on frame or wood construction, the other on a masonry type structure.

The Martin Eby Construction Co., of Wichita, Kan., was the low bidder on the frame or wood construction on the Group "A" project with a bid of $2,110,527. The U. S. Corps of Engineers estimate on this type structure, which calls for 15 frame, two-story buildings and a mess hall-administration building, was $2,509,899.58. This structure is known as the 25-year permanent building.

G.W.L. Construction Co., North Little Rock, Ark., was low bidder on the masonry type structures with a bid of $2,648,900 against the Engineers' estimate of $2,636,947.60. Under the masonry project, this calls for nine three-story dormitories plus the three mess hall-administration buildings.

As soon as a decision is reached, the contractor will be notified and he must begin his work within five days. Thus, work on the Group "A" project is expected to be under way by approximately Oct. 24 or 27.

The contractor will have 300 calendar days to complete the project, excluding Sundays and holidays.

Sparks Set Fire
To Fields on Six
Gr. Ridge Farms

Sparks from an M-K-T train, fanned by wind, set fire to fields on six farms surrounding Green Ridge Monday night at about 9:30. Section hands, on the alert for such a fire because of the unusual dryness of crops brought about by the current lack of rainfall, put out the blaze and then stayed up all night to see that it did not flare up again.

Since the creeks are dry and many homes without water, the section hands were forced to carry water and wet sacks from nearby houses that have usable wells or cisterns.

Air Force Orders Delta Planes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force announced today that it has ordered "initial production" of America's first supersonic delta wing fighter plane, the F102.

The new aircraft will be built by Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. (Convair), at San Diego, Calif.

The Air Force said the F102 will resemble in general the Convair-built XF92, the first known delta-wing aircraft to fly. A delta plane triangular in shape, roughly like a half diamond, and it has no horizontal tail.

"Designed for very high speeds in the stratosphere, the F102 will incorporate significant improvements in armament and electronics," the announcement said.

Performance and configuration details may not be revealed for security reasons.

The XF92 was built as a research intercepter and has been flown many times since 1948, chiefly at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif. It has been in the "high subsonic" speed range, but is reported never to have exceeded the speed of sound.

The speed of sound varies, depending upon temperature, humidity and other factors, from about 760 miles an hour at sea level to 660 at 40,000 feet. An airplane which barely exceeds that speed is in the trans-sonic range. However, the F102 will be definitely supersonic, as are several other Air Force and Navy swept-wing aircraft now flying.

Because it must function as a high-altitude interceptor of enemy bombers, the F102 also will have a terrific rate of climb.

Like all supersonic aircraft it will have complex automatic electronic controls. These are necessary because the human brain and hands are not quick enough for the split-second responses required when supersonic aircraft approach each other.

Aircraft industry experts guessed, also, that the plane might carry guided missiles, to be released automatically when the interceptor reached the correct distance from a target.

Complete Long Hop From Texas to Japan

AN AIR BASE, Northern Japan (AP)—The last of 75 jet fighters today completed a four-hop, 7,800-mile flight from Texas. The final leg of a record-shattering non-stop leap of 2,575 miles from Midway.

Tanker planes, refueling the F-84Gs in flight, made it possible for them to cover the longest overwater hop ever attempted by single-engined jets.

Forty-seven jets arrived yesterday. The remaining 28 came in today, led by Lt. Col. Robert W. Shick, Modesto, Calif., operations officer of the 27th fighter escort wing.

John L. Lewis Will Stump Tour for Democratic Nominee

CINCINNATI (AP)—Labor leader John L. Lewis rolled up his sleeves today for a personal campaign and stump tour for Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson.

Lewis already has charted two quick speeches in West Virginia for Stevenson and the Democratic ticket, and the implication was plain party leaders only had to ask to get Lewis to invade other states.

The United Mine Workers Convention quickly and with seeming enthusiasm followed Lewis in formally endorsing Stevenson yesterday.

There was talk that the miners union chief will make some radio or television appearances.

It was the first time Lewis has gone unreservedly into the Democratic party column since he supported the late President Roosevelt in 1936.

Later, he broke with Roosevelt and in 1940 supported GOP nominee Wendell Wilkie. He opposed choices of both parties in 1944 and 1948.

The decision of the 72-year-old miners chief put virtually all organized labor in Stevenson's corner. Both the AFL and CIO previously had come out for him.

In his speech, Lewis laid stress not so much on qualities attributed to Stevenson's opponent, Republican nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower, as a "professional soldier," educated and trained in the arts of warfare at public expense, "without background of economic understanding."

Lewis pictured Eisenhower as a "professional soldier," educated and trained in the arts of warfare at public expense, "without background of economic understanding."

Woes of Transit Lines

Riders Complain, Owners and Operators Bemoan Losses and Red Bookkeeping

NEW YORK (AP)—What's wrong with the nation's big-city transportation systems?

"Plenty," say the millions who fight their way into jam-packed buses, streetcars and subways every working day of their lives. "Every year the service gets worse while the fares go higher."

Transit managements, struggling to get out of the red, complain of mounting labor and equipment costs, "ruinous" federal, state and local taxes, "inadequate fares," competition of taxpayer-subsidized city transit systems, competition of private automobiles, and growing traffic congestion.

"It's murdering us," says John E. McCarthy, president of New York City Omnibus Corp., which operates 21 bus routes in crowded Manhattan.

To probe the why and wherefore of the nation's transit woes, and to find out what's being done about it, The Associated Press queried transit executives, municipal traffic experts and straphangers in 19 major cities across the United States.

The picture pieced together from the survey is one of growing financial difficulties for both municipal and privately owned transit systems and of steadily deteriorating service. Some of the companies are bankrupt. Some others are in dire financial straits. All but a handful say they are losing money.

High on transit management's list of gripes is the huge postwar increase in ownership of private automobiles.

"The private automobile," says President Fred Ossanna of Twin Cities Rapid Transit Company, Minneapolis and St. Paul, "has wrecked a number of transit companies and will wreck the rest of them, too, unless public opinion is aroused and enlightened."

More people driving to work mean fewer bus and streetcar riders. More automobiles pouring into narrow, horse-and-buggy era downtown streets add to traffic tie-ups that slow trolleys and buses to a crawl. Riders, maddened by the interminable delays, quit public transportation for car pool or take their own cars to work. The result is more congestion, more disruption of bus and trolley schedules, more disgruntled riders.

Management offers a three-fold solution: Restrict private car use of downtown streets. Ban all downtown parking. Build big parking ramps on the city's outskirts.

While downtown traffic jams and the resultant decline in rush-hour patronage are bad enough, many companies are worried even more by non-use of their facilities during nonrush hours.

They blame television, which keeps people home at night. They blame suburban branch stores and outdoor movies.

An official of the Portland, Ore., Transit Company points out that "we can't maintain a fleet of extra buses to handle peak loads that last only four hours a day and let them run empty 18 or 20 hours."

One of the big things transit company officials say worry them is higher operating costs.

A big diesel-powered bus with hydraulic steering could be bought in 1940 for about $12,500, delivered in New York. Today the same bus with a few minor improvements in interior lighting and decor costs $21,000—an increase of more than 80 per cent.

Replacement parts and diesel fuel cost about 85 per cent more than in 1940. Labor costs in some cities are up as much as 118 per cent, and as living costs rise, more wage demands and new strike threats are in the offing.

A new federal excise tax recently put into effect will add still more to the costs of parts and fuel.

There are also public utility taxes, franchise taxes, corporate income taxes, federal transportation taxes, state gasoline taxes and other levies, many of which vary in different localities and states.

That's the universal complaint of the transit people, particularly when they are pleading with public regulatory bodies for higher fares. Often the regulatory commissions deny the fare boost requests on the ground that the operating deficits claimed by the applicant resulted from poor management or were exaggerated.

Despite frequent refusals, practically all of the 19 cities surveyed report two or more fare increases since 1943. The same trolley ride that cost 6 cents in Detroit seven years ago costs 20 cents today. Twenty-cent fares are likewise in effect in Chicago and Kansas City. The going rate in most other cities is 15 cents.

Officials of competing private bus companies predict New York's municipally owned transit facilities, including the entire subway system and a few bus lines, will pile up a year's deficit of 125 million dollars.

It's common knowledge among transit officials that every fare boost results in a decline in the number of riders carried. Up to a certain point, the decline in riders is more than offset by the increased revenue. Then the law of diminishing returns comes into play.

Atlanta, Ga., bus riders have just experienced their second fare increase in two years. The Birmingham, Ala., Transit Company hiked its fares 50 per cent in April and has been losing $25,000 a month since. Boston's public transportation systems have effected fare increases averaging 33 per cent in the last few years.

GRADUATES—Naval Aviation Cadet Donald F. Fiene, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fiene, route 1, Green Ridge, was recently graduated from the U. S. Naval Pre-Flight School, Pensacola, Fla. He is now assigned to the U. S. Naval Auxiliary Air Station, Whiting Field, Fla., where he is taking primary flight training. Fiene graduated from Green Ridge High School in 1949 and attended Westminster College, Fulton, from 1949 to 1952, entering the service in February of this year.

Despite fare increases, Schenectady, N.Y., experienced a complete breakdown of public transportation this year when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation liquidated the bankrupt Schenectady Railway Company.

What other solutions are being offered?

The American Transit Association is waging war against free riding privileges enjoyed by police, firemen and postal employees in many cities.

To boost traffic during evening hours, Twin Cities Rapid Transit is offering a "family night" plan. On family nights you ride free into the Loop districts of Minneapolis or St. Paul. You pay regular fare going home.

Monorail transit lines are receiving the serious attention of authorities in Los Angeles and San Francisco. San Francisco is also considering reversible one-way streets.

Philadelphia's city planners are suggesting new zoning laws which would require builders of large residential, commercial and industrial structures to make provision for off-street parking.

Pittsburgh's Mayor David Lawrence wants bigger parking lots around commuter stations and stepped up commuter service on the many railroad lines which criss-cross the steel city girdiron-fashion.

LICENSE TABS THAT GLOW IN THE DARK so that traffic police can spot them up to a block away at night are rolling out of the auto tag plant at Jefferson City and are now on a few cars in Sedalia.

The tabs are made of "Scotchlite" reflective plastic sheeting. They replace the present metal tabs which designate the year the auto license expires. Under Missouri's system of staggered expiration dates, about one-twelfth of the state's motorists will get the new tabs each month.

The new tabs are silver with a red imprint of the Missouri may plus the word "Missouri" and the figure "53" to indicate the year of expiration. Each emblem also has a serial number which identifies the automobile owner.

Here is how to apply the new tabs:

1. Remove the present metal tab, then wash, dry and warm the license plate to room temperature.
2. Peel the paper lining from the back of the tab, to uncover the adhesive.
3. Press the tab firmly in place in the upper right hand corner of the plate. The adhesive grips permanently, making loss or theft almost impossible since the tab can't be removed in one piece.

Michigan Manhunt Ends With Capture Of Three Fugitives

FLINT Mich. (AP)—Three ex-convicts were returned to their cells in the Flint City Jail today ending one of Michigan's most intensive manhunts.

The three, Clifford Billings, 34; and Claude Smith, 23, and his brother Lewis, 22, were recaptured yesterday.

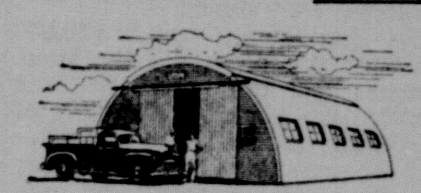

They escaped Sunday from City Jail, gaining their release by forcing turnkey Marvin Besteman to accompany them. Besteman, held at gunpoint throughout the fugitives' short-lived freedom, escaped unharmed.

Police captured the Smith brothers in the home of a friend in Lansing. Billings, described as the leader of the jailbreak, was captured later while hiding in a farm ditch near Lansing. All surrendered meekly.

Grand Jury's Report Holds For Trained Springfield Chief

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A recommendation by a grand jury that former Springfield Chief of Police Ralph W. Langston Sr. be replaced by a "trained and experienced" officer will remain part of a court record, the Missouri Supreme Court has decided.

It declined yesterday to sustain a motion by Langston's counsel that the language, part of a Greene County Grand Jury report that led to the official's dismissal, be stricken from the record.

The jury said morale in the police department had been low during Langston's tenure and procedures in the department were "vague and confusing." Langston was fired Aug. 15.

Sorosis Hears Mrs. Newbill Tell of Grand Jury Service

The grand jury is nothing new, he had a girl friend, and she had to have clothes, and do-dads—she loved do-ads, he said, and a Lincoln car. They got a lot of fun out of that witness, Mrs. Newbill said, and he laughed right along with them.

Mrs. Newbill said you could never dream of the white slavery going on right under our eyes in Kansas City, and she told of a very beautiful girl, who was the wife of a man in the white slavery racket and was his highest priced girl. She told, also, of a girl from a small town who married and found herself in the same game.

That young girl's father was there, Mrs. Newbill said, and there was tragedy written all over his face. This racket was carried on from city to city—and they were caught in Kansas City.

Then, Mrs. Newbill said, the pure food law violations were sickening—the things found in the bread and cookies in a certain bakery. Such places were discovered, fined $50 and that was it, usually, she said.

Mrs. Newbill closed her talk by telling of her subject, "The Invisible Armor," in which she said we must be equipped to meet temptation. We have to take our place in running the government, she said, with faith and prayer. Christianity is the invisible armor. God watches, she said, but He expects us to be prepared to meet life as it comes, to help establish that peace on earth.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. E. F. Yancey, a lifelong friend of Mrs. Newbill.

Presiding at the meeting was Mrs. A. J. Campbell, president, and Mrs. D. P. Dyer presented the program in the absence of the program chairman, Mrs. Leon Archias Jr.

Mrs. Herb Studer, chairman for next week, will have as speaker Ellsworth Green, executive manager of the Kansas City, Kan., Chamber of Commerce, who was secretary of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce several years ago. A luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Green will precede the meeting with reservations to be in by Friday.

Rider To Be Fox Guest. Members of the Ottaville Boots and Saddle Club will be guests of Joe Ruddleick at the Fox Theatre Thursday evening. Members will meet at the coliseum lawn and attend in a body. A social hour is planned following the Show.

In telling of the narcotics cases, Mrs. Newbill said that narcotics did not thrive too much in our vicinity because people are alert, but the first murder came out of a narcotics case. A nice looking young Negro, who had been an addict and had been cured, testified before the jury and then in open court. That night he was killed.

That particular jury made history, Mrs. Newbill said, for through it was uncovered the $34,500,000-a-year gambling grip—but these big gamblers were not being tried for gambling, they were being tried for income tax evasion.

Things, for the most part, were very serious, said Mrs. Newbill, but there were funny things, too. One, she said, was a short, funny looking man who was also up for income tax evasion and in trying to find what he had done with his money he said he had spent $20,000 going to the inaugural in Washington. Some of the jury members had also attended the inaugural but it didn't cost them $20,000, so they questioned him further. He told he had to have clothes, full dress morning attire, and the jury laughed. They could just picture him in full dress morning attire, she said, and again when he said he had to have evening dress, they knew how he must look in evening dress with his white tie and tails. Then, too,

State Capitol Power Plant Goes Blooey

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's power plant went blooey here again today, throwing the state Capitol into darkness.

The same thing happened to the antiquated generating equipment today that happened last summer to force a shutdown of state offices for a while. The end of a compressor engine blew out, slamming the heavy cast iron cap up against the wall of the building and squirting pressurized steam through the engine room.

Employees at the plant beat it for the open air, the returned to assess the damage as the steam lost its pressure. No one was injured.

Claude Brown, chief engineer at the plant, said standby equipment would be used to provide power at the Capitol while repairs are made.

Elevators in the Capitol eased to a stop as the power went off. But the women operators, coached for just such emergencies, used the brakes to drop the cars to the basement and opened the elevator doors there. It was a thrill, they said, but not dangerous.

State workers wandered around in the darkened halls, waiting for someone to turn the lights back on.

The legislature appropriated money last spring to abandon the old direct current power plant and purchase alternating current from Missouri Power and Light Co. here.

Several state buildings, including the supreme court, the old office building and the new office building now under construction already have been rewired to set up for alternating current supplied by the public utility. But some transfers still are required, especially for elevator operators.

An official of Missouri Power and Light said some equipment shortages might delay completion of the power changeover for several months yet.

Trunk With $235,000 In Missing Jewelry Located In Indiana

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Terminal railroad officials have partially solved the mystery of the missing trunk which contained $235,000 in jewelry. It was located yesterday in Lafayette, Ind. How it got there they still don't know.

William S. Frunk, salesman for the William Sheer Company, a New York wholesale jewelry firm, presented his claim check for the 180-pound trunk at the Union Station baggage room here Oct. 7.

One baggage man remembered weighing the object, but it couldn't be found. The trunk was supposed to go to Memphis, Tenn., along with Frunk, but it didn't turn up there.

Messages were sent to all railroad stations and a reply came from the Indiana city.

Special Agent William Wagner said he was told the trunk still was locked, and apparently still had its diamond rings, bracelets and pins.

He will bring the trunk back to St. Louis where it will be opened by police.

Columbia Will Ask For Airline Service

COLUMBIA (AP) — The Columbia city council last night voted to ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to approve Columbia-Kansas City passenger and mail service by Ozark Air Lines.

The air line is now serving Columbia with two trips each way between St. Louis and Tulsa, Okla. Establishment of the flight to Kansas City would not affect the present schedule but the city and the company contend that it would provide increased business for the air line and better service for the community.

Mrs. Peck Solves Problems, 'Uncorks' New Little Brown Jug

Did you ever have a dream that grew into a nightmare? That is exactly what has happened to Louise Peck. While her husband, Russell Peck, is over in Europe taking care of Uncle Sam's business, Mrs. Peck is over here trying to take care of the Pecks' business, expanding it into something bigger and better.

It sounded so simple at first — because the idea was simple — just a little brown jug idea, everything rustic and lighted with lanterns. But the problems that arose one never could imagine and the next time — if there ever is a next time, she is going to choose something modern, something like everything else has. This thing of wanting to be different can make you baldheaded — you tear your hair out by the handful.

Well, the place had to be enlarged. There was no doubt about that. People crowded into the small building where they served Sokey's special barbecued ribs, until it was easier to feed the other fellow than it was to reach your own mouth — nobody knew whose ribs they were chewing on. It was downright dangerous — you might see an arm that way — there seemed to be such an entanglement of ribs and arms.

The business was closed just before Labor Day and the new building was started. It was going to be cute, Louise thought, with a big porch in front on which would hang old time lanterns.

"But, what do you want with a porch?" asked the sidewalk superintendents who grouped themselves in front of the place to watch the building.

Louise believes she would never have made it without their many suggestions — criticism and questions. They were certainly curious — and perhaps disgusted with a woman's ideas. Even the man who was building the place seemed to be no closer to the place — except the original back door.

All the men standing around outside wondered how people would get in, but the builder was wondering how he was going to get out after he got the building completed. Finally Louise satisfied them by telling them it was not to be a place of going in and out the windows, she had planned to have a door cut in the front.

The matter of getting the lanterns — you know the kind that look like they are in a bird cage — would be easy, thought Louise. But that was because she had never tried to buy lanterns before — she knew better now.

She spent four hours in junk yards in Kansas City. She simply hunted junk yards, army stores, wholesale houses and even went to a manufacturer of lanterns, who told her he would have to have a pattern drawn. That would take about three weeks and then the dye would have to be cast. And Louise, the expense for a dozen lanterns growing bigger and bigger as she talked. So, as fast as she could, she got out — that idea just wasn't so good.

The style lantern she had decided on, she learned, was the old-fashioned lantern that had been used years ago by railroad switchmen and they were obsolete. But she finally got her lanterns, and they are old lanterns, the Katy, the Wabash, the Alton and others and each road had a different type lantern that required different wiring and there was difficulty in getting things to fit in the bottom of the lanterns, too.

One she had just about given up on when she found a lid to a pickle jar did the trick.

As she and Russell had traveled around the country on vacation trips she saw a number of places with slab roofing and she didn't think she would have a bit of trouble, but she did. She couldn't buy slab roofing here. She, at last, found a man with a sawmill, who thought she was crazy, but who did fix the lumber into slabs for her roof.

Another idea was to have hickory trees for coat hangers. But the branches of the trees just did not seem to be in the right places. The she thought they could just be put in corner brackets and the trees would not tear the linings of coats.

And then there were the little brown jugs to be used for the interior decorating. You can always find jugs. Well, that is just what you think, says Louise — just try finding them.

Those were just a few of the things Louise went through to get the Little Brown Jug fixed up. She was up to her neck in difficulties when she got a letter from her husband saying he was spending the weekend on the Riviera in France — and that didn't help. There he was on the Riviera while she was trying to get water for the Little Brown Jug. What's that? — Yep, that's what she said, water for the Little Brown Jug. Somehow we never thought about water in connection with a Little Brown Jug, but then Louise's ideas are definitely different.

On top of the rest Louise had her two children to think about. Candy, five years old, she just turned over to her mother — and Ricky, 10 was the junior sidewalk superintendent. He was interested in everything — had more big ideas and tried to salvage all manner of things.

But the job is done now — and Louise is ready to open The Little Brown Jug on Wednesday. She and Snockey, in partnership with the Pecks, will have their big re-opening starting at 11 a. m. and they plan to close at 1:30 p. m. Those will be their hours each day.

We are trying to make it a homey, nice place, said Louise, where people will like to come and stay, as long as they please. Snockey, who has been barbecuing ribs for the past 35 years — is proud of his food. He would rather have people say his food is good than anything — and Louise believes they never could say anything.

The interior is done brown half way up and the rest of the way yellow, with a row of little brown jugs.

The menus are of plywood cut and painted like little brown jugs and the little jugs in which sauce is sold are brown and white, just like those used in the decorating. The tables are pine with sawbuck legs and the place is lighted with lanterns which will soften the way you look as you smear yourself eating ribs.

The footing will be hickory smoked — featuring the ribs — and on Friday, French fried shrimp with barbara chicken a Sunday specialty.

General Marshall Will Not Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall said today on his return from Europe that he would not vote in the forthcoming presidential elections.

Marshall told reporters in an answer to a question that he had obtained an absentee ballot from his Leesburg, Va., home. But he added joyfully:

"My father was a Democrat, my mother was a Republican, I'm an Episcopalian. I never voted in my life and I'm not voting this time."

The wartime Army chief of staff and former secretary of state and United States from an overseas tour he made as chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission.

"If you could remove the constant strain of the threat of Soviet Russia, Europe would again be a happy place," Marshall said. Yet he observed "a tremendous change" since he visited Western Europe in 1948, Marshall said. He was told there was "a constant dwindling of Communist influence, more emphasis in some countries than others," he added.

In 1948 Europe was a "fallow field for Communism," he said, but now it "had the appearance of a reasonable prosperity, certainly from the agrarian standpoint."

Marshall toured Italy, France, Holland, England and Luxembourg.

GOP 'GI Air Caravan' Off To Back Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A brightly painted special Republican campaign plane leaves for New York City today on the first leg of a 6,000 mile "GI Air Caravan."

Led by Charles E. "Commando" Kelly, Pittsburgh Medal of Honor winner, more than a dozen other veteran leaders will barnstorm in 14 eastern states and as far west as Minnesota and south to Missouri.

Frank C. Hilton, chairman of the GOP National Committee Veterans' Division, listed these purposes of the air tour:

"1. To tell the story of (Gen. Dwight D.) Eisenhower, from the war veteran's viewpoint.

"2. To interest veterans in good government and to get out the vote.

"3. To disprove the malicious lies about Eisenhower's attitude toward servicemen, veterans and their dependents that are being deliberately circulated in Army, Navy and Air Force bases here and abroad.

"4. To disclose the threat of Communism in government and appeasement of Communism abroad and show how it affected and still affects our national security and the individuals' welfare.

"5. To present to parents of young Americans now in Korea the facts about one of the blackest pages in American history.

"6. To show how corruption and crime in government has permeated government and is injuring the morale of loyal, honest federal employees.

"7. To let the veterans know who the Democrat presidential candidate really is, and why they cannot vote for him.

"8. To tell why veterans must vote for Eisenhower and (Sen. Richard) Nixon, two veterans who have championed the cause of all veterans."

The caravan will visit Springfield and Cape Girardeau Oct. 25.

Mayor Studer At Municipal League Meeting

Mayor Herb Studer attended the annual convention of the Missouri Municipal League in St. Louis, Oct. 8-10. He is a member of the league's board of directors.

Studer said general municipal problems involving city finance, sanitation, fire-fighting and traffic were discussed.

Several cities indicated their interest in a plan to buy jointly the heavy equipment necessary to build and maintain their roads, but no commitment was made by Sedalia, he said.

Another item discussed was the financial hazard of sending city fire trucks to the scene of fires outside city limits. Were a fireman to be injured at such a fire, he said, the fireman could sue the individual members of the council and the mayor.

"But," he added, "we've still got to go ahead and take some chances."

The convention boasted a record attendance of 450 municipal officials, he said, and was presided over by Bruce Carl of Columbia, chairman, Lt. Gov. Blair attended the meeting.

Mama parakeet died and left three little baby parakeets which must be fed with an eye dropper four times a day. Such a thing is disrupting the household a bit—especially since the mother in the family, who is trying to mother the parakeets, has a part time temporary job—and she has to dash home to feed the baby birds.

The other day her little daughter came home from school at about 4:30 and called her mother on the telephone to ask if she might feed the baby birds, and the mother was only too happy to let anybody who wanted to take over the job.

About 45 minutes later the mother arrived home and the little girl was still feeding the birds the parakeets. "I just can't get these little birds filled up," said Susie to her mother. "They just keep cheeping for more."

The mother looked at the birds. They were just groggy from milk, they couldn't hardly stand up.

"I have heated three bowls of milk," continued Susie, "and they just keep on yelling," still using the eye-dropper.

The mother took hold of one of the small birds and it spit up milk all over her hand.

"I think they have enough," said the mother, and she wondered if any of the little birds would survive the ordeal—but they did and now Susie knows that you just feed a baby parakeet so much and then stop, you don't just keep on until he stops yelling because when he stops yelling he is dead—and if mama hadn't got home just when she did there would have been three little parakeets that would have certainly stopped yelling.—H.L.

A woman was going to a banquet recently and she wanted to look her best without buying a new dress—so she thought she would doll the dress up a little bit with a flower.

She went down town, picked out a very pretty flower and the night of the banquet started to pin it on. She tried three different kinds of pins which even included a safety pin and she just couldn't get the flower pinned on, in fact she pinned and pinned and finally she gave up not because she couldn't get it pinned—she gave up simply because she wore the flower completely out.

Socialistic Trends Hit By Sen. Taft

CASPER, Wyo. (P)—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) assailed the Democratic administration last night when he said was its attempt to force a totalitarian and socialistic form of government on the United States.

Speaking at a Republican rally at Casper on behalf of Gov. Frank A. Barrett, Wyoming senatorial candidate, Taft lashed out frequently at President Truman.

He answered some of the President's recent whistle-stop statements and at one point called one claim of the President a "complete lie."

Taft listed the following campaign issues:

1. Corruption in government, in which he stated, "We have reached the lowest state of political morality in the history of the nation."

He reviewed the RFC Commodity and income tax scandals.

2. The threat of American liberties from a tremendous growth of big government.

3. Foreign policy.

Commenting on a recent statement by President Truman to the effect "that he has cleaned up corruption wherever he found it," Taft said that was a "typical misstatement" of the President.

Referring to President Truman's contention that the Democratic administration had given labor protection and security, particularly railway labor, Taft declared "That is a complete lie."

He said the Railway Mediation Act was promulgated and passed in the Coolidge administration.

Taft also said:

"It is the foreign policy of this administration which built up the Russian Communist threat we face today. It is that threat which determines almost every measure of domestic policy and threatens the destruction at home of the very free economy which has been the basis of our progress."

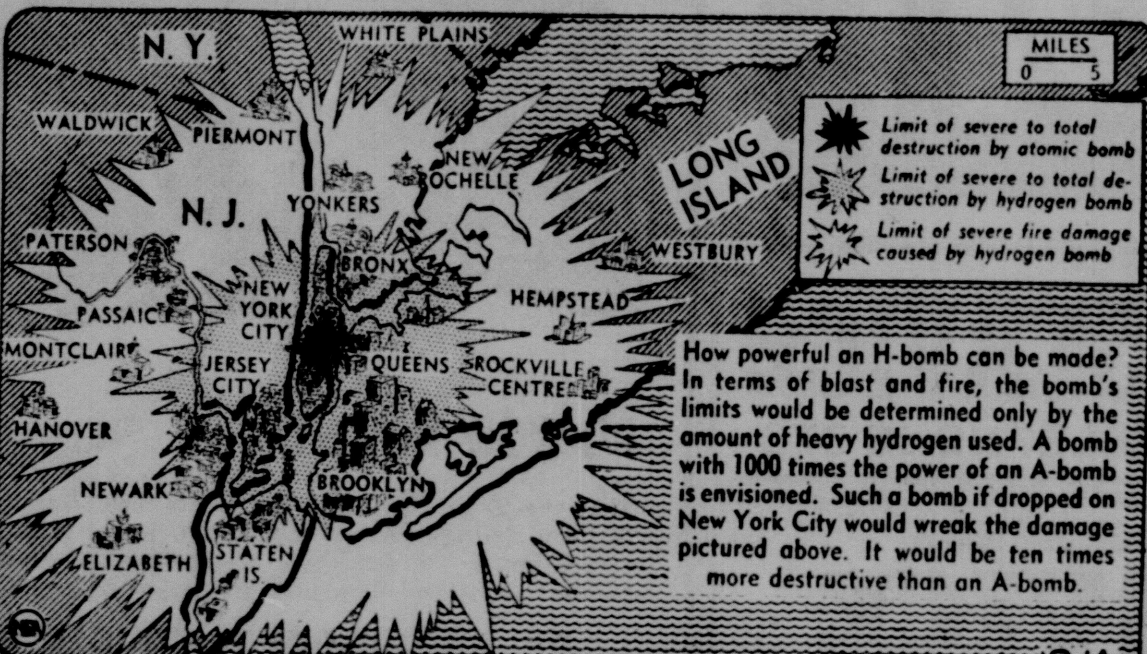

The administration leaders, he said, "wholly failed" to realize the nature of communism "or that the Soviet government was a predatory, totalitarian tyranny intent on establishing a world-wide communist dictatorship."

Taft leaves Casper today for Albuquerque.

THE HELL BOMB

So eminent a nuclear physicist as Dr. Harold G. Urey believes that as a means of poisoning the atmosphere with radioactive atoms the H-bomb is virtually unlimited. Map at left shows how radioactive clouds produced by specially rigged H-bombs could be carried across the U. S.

How powerful an H-bomb can be made? In terms of blast and fire, the bomb's limits would be determined only by the amount of heavy hydrogen used. A bomb with 1000 times the power of an A-bomb is envisioned. Such a bomb if dropped on New York City would wreck the damage pictured above. It would be ten times more destructive than an A-bomb.

Sparkman Averaged $11,000 Income for 8-Year Period

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright 1952 By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — Having focused some attention on the finances of Senator Nixon, the GOP vice-presidential candidate, here is a report on the finances of the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

In 1942, Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama, then a member of the House of Representatives, telephoned this column to say:

"You have been writing up members of Congress who put their wives on the payroll. I've never had Mrs. Sparkman on my payroll yet, but I'm about to put her on. She's going to be a real working member of the staff, and anytime you drop around to the office, you'll find her there. If that's a story make the most of it."

This column has frequently called attention to relatives of Congressmen carried on the public payroll who merely draw a salary but do not work. Likewise this column has been careful to point out family members who performed real jobs for Congressmen. Among them Mrs. Irving L. Sparkman, wife of the Republican Senator from New York, who works in his office and works hard.

Another was Arthur Vandenberg, Jr., son of the late Republican Senator from Michigan. It would have been difficult for Senator Vandenberg to have accomplished what he did without his son's help. Likewise Vice President Jack Garner kept his wife on the payroll and she earned every penny she got. However, in keeping with the healthy policy of dissecting the financial affairs of candidates, here is a scrutiny of Senator Sparkman's income.

His income taxes, already made public for the past eight years, show that in 1944 he grossed $9,493.52 before taxes. This climbed to $13,005.47 in 1951, and the average income was around $11,000—all before taxes. Against this, Sparkman paid an average tax of about $2,300 a year.

The Senator's income, chiefly his congressional salary, was augmented by rent of $75 a month on a six-room bungalow in Huntsville, Ala., plus rent of $400 a year on a 160-acre farm near Huntsville.

During his sixteen years in Congress he has made a total of $2,000 on lecture fees and $950 from two magazine articles. His wife receives a base salary of $4,500, which with overtime comes to about $6,500. She is also a 49 percent owner of Radio Station WAVU at Albertville, Ala., the other owner being the husband of the Senator's niece.

Senator Sparkman's capital investments include: $50,000 in life insurance; about $20,000 in government bonds; about $10,000 in investment certificates; $675 in stock in a vending-machine company that sells insurance at airports; and a $35,000 home in Washington.

Sparkman bought his Washington home in 1947, paying $15,000 in cash, by converting government bonds. He took a mortgage of $20,000, of which about one-half has been paid off.

Sparkman began life as the son of a tenant farmer in Alabama, and it was always his ambition to own a farm. He now owns what he describes as a rather run-down farm, but says he is trying to build it up.

The Senator has a savings account in Huntsville, Ala., of $3,000, and a checking account in Washington.

SECOND MAN on the Ticket

THE Governor smiled wearily. "Hitting Clyde McDonald seems to be our only consolation. Thanks for trying."

"He definitely tried," Lucy said. "He had so much lipstick smeared on him, he looked like the Dying Gladiator."

"I can still detect a trace of it," the Governor said mildly. While Lucy blushed and I rubbed my mouth with my handkerchief, the Governor said to me, "Better go over to the airport and pick up Bill. We'll all sit down together and decide the best course."

I asked Lucy to go along and we went out to the car. When we were all settled, I put my arm around her.

"We've got an errand," she said reprovingly. "Let's go."

"Now don't play hard to get." It was the sort of thing a man says when his emotions are functioning and his brain is not. I had not thought it an offensive reproach, but Lucy bristled.

"I know that would be contrary to your conception of me," I said. "Now, Lucy," I said, "I—"

"After all," she went on in the same tone, "a girl who's been around—"

"Honey, I didn't mean anything like that," I protested. "Drive on," she said.

I drove away. I was angry because she had chosen to misunderstand. We were well out on the highway before I spoke. "Lucy, I thought we had a pretty good understanding of each other. I didn't expect you to take a conventional, feminine attitude with me."

"What attitude did you expect?" "Why, the same as usual," I said. "Friendly, matter-of-fact, non-halant. You know, sophisticated."

"Sophisticated?" Lucy said. "Yes," I said. "Sophisticated. That's what you've led me to expect. I didn't think you'd get feminine about it."

"Roy," she said, "if you were a this," Ginny said, "I shouldn't have told him, I guess, but it slipped out. Honestly, Roy, I don't want to make trouble."

"What did you tell him, Ginny?" "Something Aunt Hattie said. This morning she remarked that Governor Warburton hadn't changed much since he left Hydetown, except to put on a little weight, and I asked her how she knew, since she hadn't seen him for 30 years. She said something about seeing his picture in the paper, and changed the subject, but I happened to mention it to Clyde, and now he's convinced that the Governor came to Hydetown to see Aunt Hattie last night. You know, when we found you there."

"Yes, I know," I said. "That's a ridiculous notion."

"So Clyde is checking up," she went on. "Roy, I'm sorry I made such a mess of everything. Honestly, I just thought it would be fun, but it kept getting worse and worse. Now I'm caught in the middle, and I can't go through with it."

"With what?" "With any of it," she said. "I can't take that job." She spread her hands helplessly. "Roy, I can't type a lick."

I blinked at her. "Not even hunt and pick," Ginny said. "I never have held down any kind of job for long. I worked at the grocery store for a while but I never could keep track of the stock and I was always making silly mistakes. Now don't laugh."

"I'm not laughing, Ginny." "Then I did a shift at the five-and-dime store," Ginny said. "But I was forever putting stockings in the cash register and money in the paper bag. I couldn't possibly be a secretary to Governor Warburton."

"Ginny, your qualifications aren't important to us," I said. "You know what is important to us."

"I guess I'm not cut out for anything," Ginny said. "Except maybe housekeeping." She started away from the wall. "Goodness, there's Clyde. Roy, I'm going to the powder room. Slip outside and I'll meet you."

Hal Boyle's Column—Going Back to Italy Brings Memories, Some Not Pleasant

NEW YORK (P)—We were packed under the tension and lay in the dirt, writhing, frothing, moaning in his own mental darkness. "Poor lad," said one of his comrades, "he can't take a second one."

I looked out at the swift-flowing East River mirroring the dull image of a gray October sky.

"Think of it—tomorrow night we'll be in Rome," said Frances. "Promise you'll show me all the places you saw in the war?"

"Sure," I said. "But there won't be much of it left to show you."

What could be left after all these years of what Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army troops in Italy bitterly called "the forgotten war"? Mark Clark himself was off at the other side of the world now directing his second forgotten war—this one in Korea.

The scars must be pretty well covered in Italy. The earth heals itself quickly. For that matter, a man's mind does a pretty good job of healing itself, too, although there is always a tender spot left in the scar tissue. What was left in me of all those distant battles—the heat and cold, the mud, the spent blood, the growing guns, the people begging for bread in ruined towns?

Oddly, the first thing I remembered was a boy's white face, crying silently. He was a ragged Italian child, and an American medic was sprinkling sulfa powder on a gaping shell wound in his head, and the wound was so infected the smell from it sickened the soldier.

"If the boy could get some real care," said the medic. "But after we move on—I'm afraid—"

We did move on. Where is that little boy now?

They have wonderful gloves in Italy," said Frances. "We must get some for Christmas presents."

I remembered the flashes of the artillery guns, standing almost wheel to wheel, stabbing the night at Salerno Beach... and unrolling accordions of barbed wire... and a British soldier who broke

Affairs, told the delegates yesterday before his departure for the United Nations. N. Y., that the churches must help "counteract a wave of neo-isolationism in the United States which is centering its attack upon the United Nations."

"Blind loyalties which embrace old decisions must obviously be avoided," he said. But there is to join the Lutheran Church, urgently needed an upsurge of popular support for the U. N. as it Philadelphia, convention delegate and a member of the Commission for which it is designed. This is of the Churches on International a Christian responsibility."

It is estimated that diamond-back rattlesnakes are responsible for about a third of the snakebites in the United States.

Resettlement Poses Problem For Churches

SEATTLE (P)—A great population shift to the West and South has created the major problem confronting the Lutheran Church in this country, clerics and laymen of America's largest Lutheran group reported today.

They were in virtually complete agreement on this answer in a sampling made of delegates to the 18th biennial Convention of the United Lutheran Church in America.

"We're finding it hard to keep up with them," said the Rev. Charles G. Tusing, Pulaski, Va. "Unless the church gets into an area at the same time the people do, those who were active in their home congregations do not normally take their place in the religious life of the new community into which they move."

Gilbert Olson, Phoenix, Ariz., businessman and prominent Lutheran layman said:

"We are experiencing the greatest migration in this history of the world. People are coming west across the Rocky Mountains in staggering numbers. Either we serve these people when they arrive or else we lose them for the church."

The South's growth was pointed up by the Rev. John Yost, formerly of Savannah, Ga., but now of New York City. He said Southern cities were swelling more rapidly than most other areas, bringing a changed economic situation and a changed attitude toward racial groups.

"We need Negro leadership," he said. "We must help the Negro to help himself."

In action yesterday, the convention voted to increase pensions of pastors and their widows by 50 percent if congregations double their contributions to the pension fund from 4 to 8 percent.

A report of "mixed" marriage of Lutherans and non-Lutherans brought the recommendation by the Board of Social Missions that their pastors "extend education and counseling service" rather than require both parties to a marriage to join the Lutheran Church.

The Rev. O. Frederick Nolde of Philadelphia, convention delegate and a member of the Commission for which it is designed. This is of the Churches on International a Christian responsibility."

The World Today—All Stops Out for Speakers

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (P)—Take to the hills, men. Election is three weeks from today. Things are picking up and getting rough.

The campaign itself began leisurely enough, with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson as polite to each other as members of the same club. That didn't last long enough to be monotonous.

If let alone, by this time both men probably would have been slugging each other anyway. But they didn't really have any privacy. President Truman moved in, and so did Sen. Robert A. Taft. Truman took it easy on Eisenhower at first. After all, he thought so much of Eisenhower at one time that he wanted him to be the Democratic nominee. But gradually, after saving he had been mistaken about the general, he began pulling out all the political crowbars he could find to pry Eisenhower loose from his pedestal.

Having thus written himself a blank check for anything he wanted to say about the general, Truman said plenty. This tampering with his prestige pushed the general into pulling the trigger on the President.

And Stevenson, who said early in the campaign, "I'm getting more aggressive all the time"—when reporters wondered when he'd get aggressive—is getting more aggressive. His digs at Eisenhower aren't gentle any more.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, teeing off in all directions while all the

Unidentified Woman Takes Others' Baby

NEW YORK (P)—A 6-day-old girl and an unidentified woman who took her from a hospital ward before the mother could claim her were sought today by police.

New York City police sent out a 13-state alarm for the pair yesterday after they were informed of the child's disappearance Sunday from a Bellevue Hospital ward.

Police said the infant, the child of Anna and Raphael Hernandez, was claimed by an unidentified woman who gave a hospital attendant the impressions that she was a relative of the child's parents. It was not until yesterday that the disappearance became known. Mrs. Hernandez, being released from the hospital, asked for her baby and the child could not be found.

In 1946 there were three female immigrants to the United States for every male, which reflected the large number of war brides brought back by soldiers.

'Home Type,' Not 'Pin Up,' Is GI's Girl

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Servicemen in World War II may have gone for the glamor girl pin-up, but GIs of today prefer the home-type girl.

That's the contention of Rebel Randall, favorite disc jockey of U. S. soldiers and sailors all over the world. Her show is carried over Armed Forces Radio Service to wherever American men are serving. Naturally, she gets a flood of letters from lonesome boys.

"Of course, they have their pin-ups," said Rebel, who is plenty all right in the cheesecake department herself. "But they seem more concerned with the girls they left back home. The letters I get are a perfect example."

"All of them are respectful; I have never yet had one in bad taste. Nearly everyone remarks that my voice reminds them of someone they know back home—their girl friend, sister or mother."

She took a letter from her copious files to illustrate her remarks. It was from a GI in Korea and it read:

"Rebel, I hope you never give up that program as long as one of our men is in Korea. I doubt very much if you realize just how much of a morale-booster it is. . . . The first time I heard you, I thought that you had the warmest, most compelling voice I'd ever heard."

"And most of the men I knew thought the same thing. One thing that's really amazing is the fact that no one ever made a disrespectful remark about you."

Rebel remarked that such reactions from today's GIs are because their average age is much lower than in World War II. "Most of them were taken right out of school," she said. "They think about home a lot more."

Rebel admitted that some of her letters get pretty serious. She has had many offers of marriage. How does she handle them? By a very simple method. She changes the subject. But she always continues writing. For two years, she spent eight hours a day answering the letters in her own hand. Now she has been forced to open an office and hire two secretaries to help her with the mail.

She also dates many of the soldiers who return from overseas and want to take life. Considering all these activities, I asked how she found time for her own private life.

"I don't have any," she replied. "My boys keep me too busy."

200 Horsepower Cars, and More, In 1953 Models

DETROIT — The 200-plus horsepower automobile will be introduced in the 1953 models.

This was confirmed yesterday by executives of the Ford Motor Co., when they disclosed that the new Lincoln cars will have 205 horsepower engines. Industry reports have it that perhaps two more car manufacturers also plan to step over the 200-horsepower level.

One manufacturer is understood to be planning to boost power output to 210. Another has made tests showing that even better than that power output can be attained with certain modifications.

In the case of the Ford Lincoln model the increase is 45 horsepower over the 1952 model. The others rumored as considering an increase already are fairly close to the 200 horsepower point.

Asked what advantage there might be in 200-plus power output in a stock automobile, a Ford engineer remarked:

"Well, this is a competitive industry; we've had to do it. However, once you've driven a car with the top power output, you won't be satisfied with anything less."

In the preliminary road and track tests the new Lincoln cars have averaged almost 115 miles an hour over a 100-mile run. In some straightaway tests they have been driven better than 117 miles an hour.

Symington-Kem Square Off At 6-Foot In Bitter Debate

By The Associated Press

The two rivals for the Senate seat now held by James P. Kem blasted away at one another last night—six feet apart and before an audience of 1,500 in St. Louis.

The debate was bitter, though formally courteous. Neither Kem, the Republican, nor Stuart Symington, the Democratic nominee, interrupted the other while speaking. Afterwards, they even shook hands, coldly.

Kem called Symington, former head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and St. Louis industrialist, a "plant and complacent tool of Trumanism."

Symington hit back by comparing Kem's voting record to that of former Rep. Vito Marcantonio of New York, left-wing spokesman in Congress until his defeat in 1950.

Symington said Kem's voting record on foreign policy was "dangerously like" Marcantonio's.

Symington said he didn't want to imply that Kem was a Communist, but "I do mean to imply that the position of the American isolationist is strikingly similar to the Communist party line."

He declared Kem, despite campaign pledges to uphold a bipartisan approach to foreign policy, had soon established "a reputation as one of the leaders against a bipartisan foreign policy."

Kem said Symington had been going around the state "criticizing and deploring every aspect of the Truman administration." But, he emphasized—shaking his finger at his opponent—"it is too late. You are stuck with your record."

For 6½ years, he insisted, Symington had been "part and parcel of the Truman regime. He has sat at Mr. Truman's table—he has carried out his orders."

Turning to another theme Kem has been sounding frequently in his campaign, the Senator said the Emerson Electric Co., "collected a cool 36 million dollars from Uncle Sam before the Defense Department was forced to cancel the contract because Emerson was unable to do the job."

Symington once headed the firm.

Kem challenged Symington's assertion that the contract—for a radar fire control system—was awarded long before Symington entered the government.

VIENNA — The Kremlin's ace propagandist, author Ilya Ehrenburg, has arrived in Vienna to prepare what world communism calls the "greatest peace meeting in the history of mankind."

Ehrenburg, it was learned, arrived a few days ago from Moscow to work with Austrian Communists on arrangements for the "World Peace Congress" which opens here Dec. 5.

Ex-Counterspy Goes On Trial In Wife's Death

BALTIMORE — G. Edward Grammer, husky former counterspy, went on trial today, charged with murdering his wife and trying to disguise the crime as the result of an automobile accident.

About 120 witnesses were listed for the case being heard in Baltimore Circuit Court by Judge Herman M. Moser without a jury.

Grammer, 35-year-old former Baltimorean and more recently of mining firm, was indicted by a grand jury less than two weeks after the death of his wife last Aug. 20.

Two Baltimore County policemen saw her car, a $3,000 wedding anniversary gift from her husband, careen wildly down a hill on the northeast outskirts of the city and overturn on the roadbank.

When they reached the spot seconds later, they found her unconscious and she was pronounced dead a short time later.

Suspicious because the car was not badly damaged and the woman was so severely injured, the officers began an investigation which resulted in a medical examiner's verdict that Mrs. Dorothy may

Judge Boosts Fee, For Losing a Wife

LONDON — Sculptor Robert Davies has learned his ex-wife is worth exactly 600 pounds—$1,680—more to him than he thought she was. Or she is in the eyes of a divorce court.

Davies divorced his Pamela on the grounds of misconduct and claimed 200 pounds ($590) damages from the co-respondent, Fritz Naumann.

But the judge decided 800 pounds ($2,240) was what Davies should get for the loss of Pamela. The wife, the judge explained, "was earning money for them both."

Grammer was a victim of homicide.

Police said Grammer told them he and his wife had been visiting her widowed mother in Baltimore and on the night of her death Mrs. Grammer had driven him to a railroad station for his return to New York.

Iowa State Down But Not Completely Out

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Iowa State, on the receiving end of a one-two punch, may be groggy but the Cyclones aren't ready to be counted out.

Coach Abe Stuber's team absorbed a 43-0 pounding from Kansas Saturday, and this weekend it runs smack-dab into the Colorado Buffaloes at Ames.

And coach Dal Ward says his Buffs are in their best physical shape of the entire season after licking undefeated Arizona, 34-19, Saturday night.

The Cyclones might be expected to be a bit punchy after the K. U. game. The shutout marked the first time the Cyclones have been whitewashed twice in a row since 1939. They lost the previous weekend to Nebraska, 16-0. It was also the biggest margin ever run up by the winning team in the K. U. series, spanning fifty-five years.

Despite the lacing, Stuber says his squad should be in better shape than it has been all season. No major injuries were suffered in the one-sided tilt and Stuber says half a dozen previously injured players will return to action.

Colorado subdued the Cyclones last year 47-20 at Boulder, evening the series at three victories for each team since the two first met in 1946.

Yesterday both squads had light workouts but expect to return to heavy duty today.

At Lawrence, coach Jules Sikes also said he expects his Jayhawks to be in good shape for Saturday's Oklahoma game which may decide the conference title. Three men—all regulars—are nursing injuries but all are expected to be available.

Things aren't so rosy at Norman where Bud Wilkinson reported that five key players on the Oklahoma squad, injured in Saturday's game with Texas, may see only limited action against K. U.

An even darker picture prevailed at Manhattan, where a dozen men were on the Kansas State injury list. Three of the injured aren't expected to be ready for the Tulsa game. Three others are listed as probable starters while six are expected to be in shape.

At Columbia, the Tigers only limbered up in preparation for the game against Oklahoma A. & M. Nebraska continued work for its non-conference game against Penn State.

Record Breaking Player Won't Be A Starter

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—George Shaw, a somewhat scrawny 18-year-old, has cracked two football records and still cannot land a regular position on the University of Oregon team.

In a way it's George's own fault. It comes about like this: He broke into the lineup last year when freshmen were allowed to compete in the coast conference. Used almost entirely on defense, he played the safety position in such style that he made the conference all-star team and set a national collegiate record by intercepting 13 passes.

Then coach Len Casanova gave him his fast, 6-foot-1-inch player his chance on offense last week, starting him at quarterback against strong California.

Shaw promptly set another record, throwing 50 passes and completing 23 of them for a conference mark.

So will he be the No. 1 quarterback from now on?

"I'm not even sure I will start him," said Casanova, going on to explain that George is just too versatile. Too versatile, that is, to be anchored at any one position on a team that has limited manpower and a record of one win against three losses.

"George is also an excellent pass receiver and a good halfback. We may save him for spot plays at halfback. And then he's valuable on defense. We may play him there some games. It depends on the other team, and what the situation is," Casanova said.

Lopsided Victory, While Wisconsin Loses, Puts 'em Back

NEW YORK (AP)—The combination of Michigan State's one-sided victory over Texas A. & M. and Ohio State's upset triumph over Wisconsin sent the power-packed Spartans back to the top of the heap in the third weekly Associated Press football poll.

The four last-period touchdowns which turned State's game into a 48-6 rout apparently were enough to convince the national sports writers and broadcasters that the Spartans, who were first in the pre-season poll and led the first weekly ballot, should be ranked No. 1.

Thirty-nine of the 123 writers who participated in the poll picked Coach Biggie Munn's team for first place.

Wisconsin, which had jumped from eighth to first on the strength of its Oct. 4 win over Illinois, fell to 12th as the result of a 14-23 loss to Ohio State.

Maryland's powerful Terrapins moved up from fourth to second place.

Georgia Tech and Duke, the powers of the Southland who met in a big one Nov. 1, both moved up a notch, with Tech now fourth and the Blue Devils fifth.

The leaders (points based on 10 for first, nine for second, and so on) with first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Michigan State (39) 1,026
2. Maryland (31) 961
3. California (21) 889
4. Georgia Tech (4) 704

Baseball Not Out of Picture

NEW YORK (AP)—Although football dominates the sports scene these days, major league baseball officials are not hibernating for the winter.

While the Monday morning quarterbacks were replaying Saturday's big pigskin games baseball's brass quietly went about setting their house in order for the 1953 and future seasons.

The big news of the day was the signing of Casey Stengel as manager of the world champion New York Yankees for the next two seasons.

During the lengthy press session, the Yanks also announced the unconditional release of Charley Keller, 36-year-old former star outfielder of the Bombers.

Keller, signed for pinch-hitting duties on Sept. 4, struck out in his only time at bat for the Yanks. The big ball hawk was a mainstay of the Yanks' pennant winners of 1939, 1941, 1942, 1943. He was released by the Yanks after the 1949 season and played with Detroit in 1950 and 1951.

Two former Yankee chatters, pitchers Frank Hiller and Bob Keegan, also figured in the day's news.

Hiller was obtained by the New York Giants from the Cincinnati Reds while the Chicago White Sox bought Keegan from the Syracuse Chiefs of the International League.

The Giants surrendered minor league outfielder Gail Henley in order to lure Hiller from the Reds.

The veteran righthander, hampered by injuries, won five and lost eight for Cincinnati this season. Henley, hailed a few years ago as "another Enos Slaughter," batted .273 for the Reds' Tulsa farm in the Texas League.

Rod and Reel Hunters Hook Four Pet Ducks

SEVERNA PARK, Md. (AP)—Catch ducks with a rod and reel? If you know how, it's as easy—well, as duck soup.

But it wasn't quite the sporting thing for the Dr. Albert Shochat family, who told police that three bold ducknappers made off with four fat pet ducks.

Dr. Shochat said the men lured the fowl away from shore and near their motor boat last Sunday. Then somehow they hooked the ducks with rods and reels and sped away in the morning mist.

Stengel Signs 2-Year Pact At Big Sum

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel, probably the highest-paid manager in baseball history and certainly one of the most successful, today was looking forward to a five-straight world series rather than to retirement.

Stengel, 62 years old, signed his third two-year contract as manager of the world champion Yankees yesterday at a figure that likely will net him $100,000 for the coming season.

The terms of the contract weren't announced, according to baseball custom, but Casey, after dropping a few broad hints, finally indicated that he "couldn't miss" the $100,000 suggested by reporters if the Yankee owners hand out bonuses as generously as they have in the past.

Then in his usual circumlocutory style, Stengel proceeded to discuss everything from his salary to reports that he had intended to retire, rumored friction between himself and general manager

Several Hundred Sedalia Boy Scouts Participate in City's Community Chest

Money Goes Into Program for Boys Ages 8 Thru 18

Sedalia's Boy Scouts participate in the Community Chest of Sedalia, receiving funds to carry on the general program of Scouting for the several hundred boys enrolled as Cubs, Scouts and Explorers.

The Boy Scouts of America, serving over 2,000,000 boys from the ages of 8-18, has built its program of character building and citizenship training around a boys' natural desire to be in the out-of-doors. Scouting depends on the fact that in every community there are interested citizens who like to be with boys and work with them. Its organization is based on the fact that there are interested community institutions that are convinced that something must and can be done for their young people through their own adult volunteer leaders.

The Boy Scouts of America grants a charter to an institution to operate each Scouting unit—whether a Cub Scout Pack, a Boy Scout Troop, or an Explorer Unit. This charter, which is renewable once a year, certifies that the institution is qualified to use the program of scouting.

The chartered institution, be it a church, PTA, civic club, fraternal group, or a group of interested citizens, selects an institutional representative who represents the institution on the local scout council and district committee.

Within eleven counties of Central Missouri, is the Lake of the Ozarks Council serving 2,000 boys in 86 units. The area concerned includes: Benton, Camden, Cole, Gasconade, Maries, Miller, Moniteau, Morgan, Osage, Pettis and Saline counties.

LAST-MINUTE GRAIN PROTECTANT NEWS The Weevil Meets His Match-Pyronone Dusting Powder

Since we live in a section of the country where weevil destroy a fourth of the stored grain it is big news to offer a powder to be used in open granaries to prevent weevil. This Pyronone Dusting Powder should be mixed into the grain as it is being stored. It will not kill weevil by being dusted on top of grain that has already been put into storage. Use 10 pounds of this powder to a hundred bushels of grain. The cost is 25c per pound or $2.50 per 100 bushel. Old cribs should be thoroughly cleaned out and sprayed with a solution of D.D.T. before using. We have it in stock. Read the September issue of Farm Journal for further particulars.

Seek to Find How British Blueprints Of Bomber Scattered

MANCHESTER, England (AP)—British secret service sleuths today to find out how blue prints of one of Britain's latest bombers got scattered over a golf course near here.

The prints were from a nearby factory of A. V. Roe, builders of the first delta-winged heavy bomber, and of the Shackleton bomber, which took part in the recent "Mainbrace" NATO exercises.

Passersby saw the drawings lying on the edge of the golf course and turned them over to police.

When eaten, about 96 per cent of edible fats can be digested.

Pakistan's Great Conspiracy Trial Now In 15th Month

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Pakistan's great conspiracy trial, now in its 15th month, is finally nearing its close behind the walls of Hyderabad Prison.

Sixteen defendants, including the former Pakistan Army chief of staff and two Communist leaders, have been on secret trial since mid-June 1951, charged with plotting to overthrow Pakistan's government by force to substitute a military dictatorship.

The late Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan dramatically announced the roundup of alleged conspirators at Lahore March 9, 1951.

The lid of strict secrecy clamped on the trial has never been pried loose. Occasional reports tell how the accused have spent the months of their trial before a special high court, but little has sifted past the high prison walls on the actual evidence.

The so-called Rawalpindi conspiracy shook Pakistan at a time when its relations with neighboring India were most strained. Amazed citizens of this new nation heard their Prime Minister—assassinated a few months later—charge that their top military leader, Maj. Gen. Akbar Khan, and 15 others planned to imprison high

Mrs. Ewing Hurt accompanied Mrs. Homer Carpenter to Tulsa, Okla., for a visit with Mrs. Carpenter's son, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Carpenter and family. While there they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Jack Olson and family at Oklahoma City. Mrs. Olson and Mrs. Carpenter are sisters.

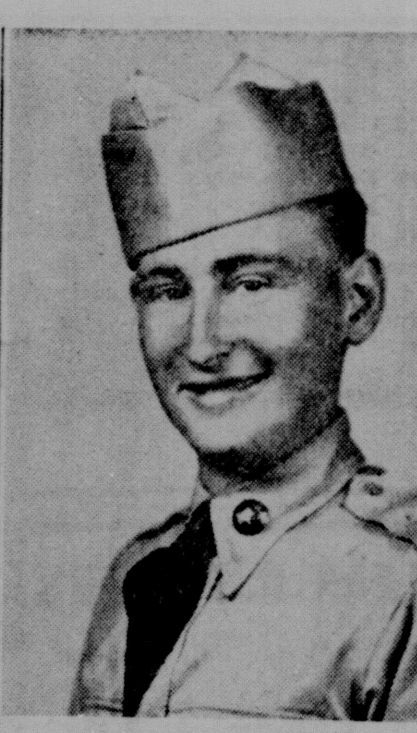

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Shrout, Calhoun, spent several days with her sister, Mrs. M. G. Phillips. While here they visited their brothers, Joe and Jim Mullett, Pilot Grove, and Cliff Mullett, Buncheon, and other relatives.

W. W. Argenbright had as weekend guests his son, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Argenbright and daughter, Norma, and son, Charles, Green Ridge, and Miss Shirley Moalenknop accompanied by Hugh Pratt and Rodger Cook, St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tavenner, Independence, were Sunday dinner guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tavenner. Afternoon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rissler and daughters.

CHICAGO (AP)—Patrolman Robert C. Woodward parked his automobile across the street from the New York police station, 1700 W. 47th Street. When he completed his tour he found his car gone and thought at first fellow bluecoats had removed it for a joke. Brother officers crossed their hearts, however, and helped him fill out an auto theft report.

B.F. Goodrich gives you a choice of two tires to fit your winter driving conditions

B. F. Goodrich Mud-Snow Tires for deep snow, steep snowy hills and mud

If you do much driving in deep snow, or steep snowy hills or on muddy country roads, the BFG Mud-Snow tire is for you. Impartial tests supervised by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory prove it. They show that in deep snow the BFG Mud-Snow Tire gives up to 24% more pulling power than regular tires, stop you 25% faster. In mud, it gives up to 25% more traction.

B. F. Goodrich "Life-Saver" Tubeless Tire for ice, light snow and wet pavement

If you live where deep snow and mud aren't serious problems, the BFG "Life-Saver" is a year-round tire that gives all the protection you need. On roads made slippery by rain, ice or packed snow, it outstays, outpicks regular passenger car tires. Patented lining replaces inner tube... protects against blowouts. A gummy layer seals punctures. The "LIFE-SAVER" gives more protection than any tire and blowout-protecting inner tube. Yet it costs less!

AS LOW AS $1.00 DOWN UP TO 6 MONTHS TO PAY

It's dangerous to drive on slippery roads with old tires that have lost their grip. It's a nuisance to be caught in the first snowfall with no traction or stopping ability. Trade in your old, smooth tires now—when it's convenient to make a change for the better and while your tires still have good trade-in value.
